Born and raised in Southern California, Sal attended Fullerton College in Southern California majoring in Business Administration. After a number of years in the Aerospace industry Sal helped found a successful communications start up. In 1991 Sal moved to Las Vegas, struck out on his own and started Airwaves of Nevada and Special Events Communications, both successful Mobile communications firms. In 2002 he sold both entities.

Subsequent to 9/11, Sal took on the challenge of founding and operating a revolutionary non-profit organization called The American Help Foundation. This organization developed sponsorships with local business as well as Fortune 500 firms. For over five years, Sal was a primary force in changing hundreds of peoples lives with many revolutionary programs all designed to promote and teach self-sufficiency and personal accountability.

In 2007 Sal joined Stable Development in the capacity of Operations Manager focusing on implementing company strategies to increase efficiency, maintain quality, and ensure continuous improvement. He brings to this position the same customer service skills utilized in growing both for profit and non-profit businesses.
